

Department of Political Science

Programme Outcome

B.A 1st Semester

Programme Outcomes for the Department of Political Science “

1. Understand the structure and functioning of political systems and institutions.
2. Analyze political concepts, theories, and public policies critically.
3. Develop research skills using appropriate political science methodologies.
4. Demonstrate civic responsibility and ethical awareness in public life.
5. Communicate political ideas effectively through oral and written formats.

Course outcome :

Paper Name: Indian National Movement and Constitution of India:

Provides a comprehensive understanding of India's freedom struggle and constitutional development.

Fosters appreciation for democratic values, fundamental rights, and duties.

Encourages critical thinking on constitutional principles and their relevance today.

Promotes civic consciousness and active participation in the democratic process.

Paper Name: Practical on Awareness of Rights and Law:

Enhances practical understanding of legal rights, constitutional safeguards, and the justice system.

Encourages field engagement and interaction with legal institutions and civil society.

Builds legal literacy and problem-solving skills in real-life contexts.

Promotes responsible citizenship aligned with constitutional morality and social justice.

B.A 2nd Semester

Paper Name: Political Theory and Concepts:

Introduces foundational political concepts such as justice, liberty, equality, and rights.

Promotes critical thinking and ethical reasoning in understanding political values.

Encourages dialogue on contemporary political debates and ideologies.

Supports holistic development through interdisciplinary and reflective learning.

B.A 3rd Semester

Paper Name: Political Process in India:

Examines the functioning of political parties, elections, and democratic institutions in India.
Analyses the role of caste, religion, and regionalism in shaping political dynamics.
Promotes active citizenship and awareness of political participation.
Encourages critical engagement with the evolving nature of Indian democracy.

Paper Name: Practical on Field Work Tradition in Social Sciences:

Builds hands-on experience in social research through field observations and surveys.
Develops skills in data collection, interviewing, and community interaction.
Encourages interdisciplinary and experiential learning rooted in real-world contexts.
Promotes ethical and reflective practice in political and social inquiry.

B.A 4th Semester

Paper Name: Western Political Thought:

Explores major political philosophers from Plato to modern thinkers and their key ideas.
Analyses the evolution of political theory in relation to state, power, and governance.
Encourages comparative reflection with Indian thought and contemporary relevance.
Promotes critical, analytical, and interpretive skills in political philosophy.

Paper Name: Comparative Politics (USA, Switzerland, China, UK, Japan:

Develops comparative analysis of diverse political systems and institutional structures.
Examines governance models, electoral processes, and state-society relations.
Enhances global political literacy and evaluative thinking.

B.A 5th Semester

Paper Name: Principle of Public Administration

Understanding Public Administration Theories, Analysing Policy Process, Leadership and Management, Public Finance, Critical Thinking
Communication and Interaction, Public Service Perspective, Administrative Theory, Policy Analysis, Application of Principles.

Paper Name: Public Policy Formation and Administration in India

Understanding Public Policy, Analysing Policy, Examining Policy Implementation.

Understanding Role of Stakeholders, Analysing Impact of Policies
Understanding Governance, Examining Challenges, Understanding Citizen Participation,
Applying Theoretical Knowledge, Developing Critical Thinking.

B.A 6th Semester

Paper Name: Indian Political Thought:

Understanding Ancient Indian Thought, Analysing Medieval Indian Thought, Understanding Modern Indian Thought, Examining Influence of Western Thought, Understanding Nationalist Movement.

Analysing Contributions of Key Thinkers, Understanding Contemporary Issues, Examining Role of Ideologies, Applying Theoretical Knowledge, Developing Critical Thinking

Paper Name: International Relations and Politics:

Understanding Global Politics and Analysing International Relations Theories
Examining Global Issues and Understanding International Institutions, Analysing Foreign Policy, Examining International Security, Understanding Economic Globalization
Applying Theoretical Knowledge, Developing Critical Thinking, Understanding Global Governance.

Paper Name: Project (Governmental Programs and Schemes:

Improved Awareness and Accessibility and Assessment of Scheme Effectiveness
Strengthened Institutional Capacity, Increased Community Participation.
Promotion of Social and Economic Inclusion, Improved Transparency and Accountability.

M.A 1st Semester

Programme Outcome

Programme Outcomes M.A. in Political Science:

- 1. Attain advanced knowledge of political theories, ideologies, and global political systems.*
- 2. Critically evaluate governance, public policy, and international relations through in-depth research.*
- 3. Apply theoretical insights to contemporary political issues and policy-making.*
- 4. Demonstrate proficiency in academic writing, debates, and scholarly communication.*

5. Prepare for careers in academia, civil services, policy research, and international organizations.

Course Outcome :

Paper Name: History of Western Political Thought (from Plato to Burke):

Develops a critical understanding of foundational political ideologies and their evolution.

Encourages analysis of concepts like justice, liberty, and state across time.

Builds capacity to connect classical theories with contemporary political issues.

Paper Name: Comparative Politics:

Enhances understanding of political systems, institutions, and processes across nations.

Promotes analytical skills for comparing governance models, electoral systems and policy outcomes.

Fosters a global perspective on political diversity and democratization.

Paper Name: Indian Government and Politics:

Provides in-depth knowledge of India's constitutional framework and political dynamics.

Encourages examination of the roles of institutions, parties, and movements.

Builds insight into federalism, secularism, and democratic functioning in India.

M.A 2nd Semester

Paper Name: History of Western Political Thought (from Bentham to Present):

Explores modern and contemporary political theories from utilitarianism to postmodernism.

Analyses key thinkers' contributions to liberty, rights, and governance.

Encourages critical reflection on the relevance of these ideas in current political discourse.

Paper Name: Comparative Politics (USA, Switzerland, China, UK, Japan):

Develops comparative analysis of diverse political systems and institutional structures.

Examines governance models, electoral processes, and state-society relations.

Enhances global political literacy and evaluative thinking.

Paper Name: Indian Government and Politics (Parliament to Panchayat and Election Commission):

Provides a comprehensive understanding of India's multi-level democratic framework.

Studies the functioning of central and local institutions and electoral processes.

Promotes engagement with participatory governance and democratic accountability.

Paper Name: Indian Administration:

Analyses the structure, evolution, and functioning of India's administrative system.

Examines the role of bureaucracy in policy implementation and public service delivery.

Develops skills for evaluating administrative reforms and governance challenges.

Paper Name: Project on Public Policy:

Focuses on the formulation, implementation, and evaluation of public policies.

Applies theoretical frameworks to real-world policy issues and case studies.

Encourages evidence-based analysis and practical policy recommendations.

M.A 3rd Semester

Paper Name: Political Thinkers of Ancient India:

Fosters understanding of indigenous political thought and philosophical traditions.

Encourages critical comparison of ancient Indian and global political ideas.

Supports interdisciplinary learning with historical, ethical, and cultural perspectives.

Paper Name: Contemporary Political Ideologies:

Promotes critical thinking about modern political values and movements.

Enhances awareness of global and local ideological developments and their impact on society.

Encourages civic engagement and informed participation in democratic processes.

Paper Name: International Politics:

Develops a multidisciplinary understanding of global relations and diplomacy.

Encourages analytical and problem-solving skills to assess international issues.

Prepares students for careers in global governance, foreign policy, and strategic studies.

Paper Name: International Organisation:

Builds knowledge of global institutions and their roles in peace, development, and cooperation.

Promotes skills in negotiation, policy analysis, and multilateral decision-making.

Aligns with NEP's vision of global citizenship and ethical responsibility.

Paper Name: Project on Political Sociology:

Integrates sociological tools to understand political structures, culture, and behaviour.

Develops research, analytical, and communication skills through field-based inquiry.

Encourages holistic thinking about power, identity, and social justice in politics.

M.A 4TH Semester

Paper Name: Political Thinkers of Modern India:

Explores the political ideas of key modern Indian thinkers such as Gandhi, Ambedkar, Nehru, and Savarkar.

Encourages critical engagement with nation-building, social reform, and democratic values.

Promotes contextual understanding of modern India's political and intellectual legacy.

Paper Name: International Politics:

Develops analytical skills to understand global power structures, diplomacy, and conflict.

Encourages multidisciplinary learning and critical thinking about global interdependence.

Prepares students for informed global citizenship and international careers.

Paper Name: Local Self-Government:

Examines grassroots democracy and the functioning of Panchayati Raj and urban local bodies.

Builds understanding of decentralization, participatory governance, and policy implementation.

Empowers students to engage with community-level problem-solving and civic responsibility.

Paper Name: Research Method in Social Science:

Introduces qualitative and quantitative research tools relevant to political analysis.

Develops critical thinking, data interpretation, and ethical research practices.

Supports interdisciplinary inquiry and evidence-based decision-making.

Paper Name: Dissertation (Political Science):

Encourages independent, original research on contemporary political issues.

Enhances academic writing, critical analysis, and methodological application.

Fosters problem-solving, creativity, and practical engagement with political realities.